

SUSTAINABLE FLOW

Comments Policy

We are open to comments of a positive and constructive nature. We encourage people to share views and to submit ideas and suggestions they may wish to see on our platform. We are aware that we are not perfect and that things may well need to be updated and altered to suit the latest regulations and also to suit the views of the company.

We respect your patience in these matters and we ask that you withhold comments of a negative nature and/or with a dismissive, aggressive or rude tone. Please make sure that if you feel something is out of line or that you are not happy about something that you have read on seen on our blog that you contact us direct on our email address abetterlife@sustainableflow.org to discuss this further.

Bullying, slander and false claims will not be tolerated and will be reported to the relevant authorities on any such occasion. Please also respect the views of other members of public on our site and also the people themselves. This is a place of open hearts and minds and we do not wish to lower the tone of this website or the subjects related to water.

We are open to change and to discussions that benefit us all.

Many thanks
